Any really good home made soups, be they of beef, mutton, chicken, are just as good and often far better than beef tea; and they may be changed from one to the other as they pall upon the patient's taste. Good, undiluted milk is quite as useful as soup of any kind, and it may always be prevented from turning sour, or making the patient bilious or feverish, by the addition of a large pinch of da to each teacupful of milk. Beef tea, soap or milk should be taken frequently and in as large quan-tities as the stomach will bear and digest without danger of causing disgust or nausea.

If stimulants are required, and they are generally wanted early and abund antly, milk punch is the best; but it should always be made with the addition of soda or lime water to the milk, for the reasons above stated.
